SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Marine Staff Sgt. Frank Von Rinteln flew to Santa Ana from Okinawa after learning that his 6-year-old daughter was critically burned.

Federal Prisons To Allow Men Work Outside

WASHINGTON (AP) — For hundreds of federal prisoners who yearn for something better, prison walls are about to become "something you return to at night" when other men are returning to their homes.

They will be given a chance to prepare a place for themselves in the nation's labor force in hopes of easing transition to freedom when their sentences are up — a shock that often leads them back to prison.

They will be turned loose from 10 federal institutions each morning, to travel to jobs, work beside free men and return voluntarily to their cells in the evening.

For every step of the way they will be on their own — un-escorted, unwatched.

The "work relief program" for which the Federal Bureau of Prisons is now setting machinery into motion, is a provision of the prisoner rehabilitation law signed by President Johnson Sept. 10.

It marks another step in the long campaign to transform U.S. penal institutions from dark holes of confinement and despair to colonies where men who have strayed from the path of lawfulness can make a stab at redirecting their lives.

The law also provides for the establishment of an adult version of "halfway houses" — pre-release guidance centers — that have proved effective with young offenders in easing the transition from prison to private life.

Myrl E. Alexander, director of the Bureau of Prisons, said in an interview a surprising number of community organizations have indicated a willingness to accept workers from nearby institutions.

But he said there would be a gradual approach to the program.

"We're going to start very conservatively and build up some experience so that our mistakes will be held to a minimum," explained the white-haired veteran of two decades of prison work.

During early months of the work release program implementation will be limited to 10 institutions where minimum custody is the rule rather than the exception.

Pope's Visit May Help Jell Vatican Talks

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Ecumenical Council bishops looked today for Pope Paul's U.N. trip to bring Roman Catholicism closer to the problems of the peace-hungry modern world.

The 2,200 prelates at the council went into their weekend recess as the Pope's Monday morning departure for the United Nations headquarters in New York drew close.

The controversial text on marriage and birth control, part of the council's schema on world problems, was back in the hands of its drafters for suggested changes.

After three days of often clashing debate the bishops voted Friday to end general discussion of the topic and move on to other matters.

Now the drafters must revise the text to take into account the numerous criticisms leveled against it from conservative and progressive factions in the council. Neither group was satisfied with the text — for different reasons.

Conservatives generally wanted stronger statements to affirm traditional Church teachings on family planning. Progressives asked for more emphasis on scientific research into the entire realm of sex and more emphasis on the importance of conjugal love for the individual.

Koevar was a veteran of the state liquor department before he resigned to join the sheriff's office in April 1963.

Planes Collide In Viet Skies

Civilian News Photographer Dies

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two U.S. A1E Skyraider planes collided today and it was believed that the pilots and one passenger were killed, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The passenger was identified as Bernard Kolenberg, 38, a photographer for the Albany (N.Y.) Times Union. He was on leave from his newspaper and on assignment for The Associated Press when he was killed.

Two other U.S. planes were lost on missions Friday.

The spokesman said the planes that crashed today were being fired on from the ground near An Khe. One plane was on a strafing run trying to eliminate the ground fire and the other was on a napalm run.

No parachutes were seen and it was presumed that the three occupants of the planes were killed, the spokesman said. The planes were based at Qui Nhon.

The aircraft reported lost Friday were an Air Force F100 and an F4C.

The F100 was on a bombing attack 105 miles west of Saigon and did not pull out of a dive. No chute was observed and the pilot was presumed killed.

The F4C went down about 75 miles northwest of Hanoi in North Viet Nam after apparently being struck by ground fire.

Two parachutes were seen and the two crewmen were reported missing.

The plane was one of 14 Phantom jets and 12 Thunderchiefs conducting missions over North Viet Nam.

In ground action near Rach Gia, about 100 miles south of Saigon, a battalion-sized operation of South Vietnamese troops reported finding quantities of Viet Cong arms and ammunition Friday.

The South Vietnamese captured eight Viet Cong and 12 suspects. Casualties were described as light.

Decision Jolts Military Courts

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has ruled that a soldier is entitled to the same legal protection at a court-martial as a civilian tried in any court.

The ruling, on a soldier's application for a writ of habeas corpus, challenges traditional concepts of military justice and is called unique by Utah's U.S. attorney William T. Thurman.

Judge A. Sherman Christensen of the Utah District, in an opinion filed Friday, said soldiers tried by special courts-martial are entitled by the Constitution's Sixth Amendment to a trained lawyer as counsel.

Officers traditionally are appointed to act as defense or prosecution counsel in a court-martial, regardless of whether they are lawyers.

The uniform code of military justice requires bona fide lawyers as defense and prosecution counsel in a general court-martial, but a lower court-martial does not carry this requirement.

Pvt. James E. Stapley of Salt Lake City pleaded guilty two months ago at a special court-martial to passing eight bad checks and using disrespectful language to a noncommissioned officer. The court-martial was held here at Ft. Douglas.

Stapley said his military counsel had recommended the guilty plea. He was sentenced to 60 days imprisonment. A fine of $55 a month for six months was commuted providing he pays back $130 in bad checks.

Two weeks ago Stapley got a civilian attorney, James P. Cowley of Salt Lake City. Cowley applied for a writ of habeas corpus, a legal tool used to free

Negro Named Bishop in New Orleans

ROME (AP) — Appointment of the Very Rev. Harold R. Perry to be auxiliary bishop of New Orleans was announced here today. He is the first American Negro to be named a bishop of the Roman Catholic Church in 96 years.

Announcement of the appointment by Pope Paul VI was made jointly by the new archbishop of New Orleans, the Most Rev. Philip Hannan, and the former archbishop of New Orleans, the Most Rev. John Patrick Cody, now archbishop of Chicago.

The Most Rev. James Augustine Healy, son of an immigrant Irish planter and a Georgia slave girl, was the first American Negro to be named a bishop of the Catholic Church. He served as bishop of the Portland, Maine, diocese from 1875 to 1900.

Father Perry, 49, born in Lake Charles, La., was present at the news conference when his appointment was announced by the two archbishops.

"It was a surprise to me," he said. "I learned about it only yesterday."

House OKs New Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved a compromise $3,218,000,000 foreign aid appropriation and quick Senate approval is expected early next week.

The bill cleared the House after a futile Republican-led fight over a Senate-sponsored provision that gives the President discretion on the cutting of aid to countries that ship material to North Viet Nam.

The original House version contained a flat prohibition against aid to those countries and a GOP effort to retain that provision was defeated 174 to 164. The final House vote on the measure was 204 to 127.

Martial Law Grips Jakarta

Communications Control Is Goal

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—Fighting broke out in Indonesia's capital city of Jakarta today when rebel forces sought to recapture a communications building seized by loyal forces Friday, Indonesian radio reports said.

The broadcasts said troops of the Zelte Siliwangi Division swarmed into Jakarta from Bandung, reinforcing units of the division that had thwarted an attempted coup Friday.

There were reports of sporadic shooting. Antiaircraft guns were being set up in what appeared to be a precautionary move because of the uncertain loyalty of the air force, it was reported.

Jakarta radio said today martial law had been proclaimed and the capital was in a "state of war."

The broadcast followed an announcement that forces loyal to President Sukarno had smashed an attempt to seize power.

Martial law applied in the Jakarta area and in West Java, the radio said. It also reported fighting in Central Java where a colonel was reported defying orders to renounce support of the rebels.

The country's political situation remained unclear but the radio station last reported that Sukarno, 64, still was chief of state following a coup against him Thursday, and a counter-coup by loyal army units Friday.

The radio reports gave no clue as to Sukarno's whereabouts but said he was safe and well. He appeared for the last time in public Thursday night.

Since early Friday, Sukarno's palace has been cordoned off by

Breeding System For Hogs Studied

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Can sows be brought into heat at the same time, thus permitting synchronized breeding and farrowing?

In tests at Beltsville, Md., 132 gilts and sows were given a synthetic drug in their ration, brought into heat simultaneously and bred artificially. Of those continuing in the tests through farrowing, all gave birth to their young within a 3-day period.

The sows averaged eight pigs per litter, about the same as control animals used for comparison, and length of gestation was normal. To date, the treatment had no apparent ill effects on any of the pigs, an important consideration in the tests.

ARS animal psychologist R. J. Gerrits is conducting the studies, using a compound called Macth, a shortened version coined from the chemical name — 1-a-methylallylthiocar-bamoyl-2-methylthiocarbamoyl-hydrazine (I.C.I.33,828). The compound, developed and patented in England, is now being examined by the Food and Drug Administration — a necessary step before it can be cleared for use by farmers.

HOG PRODUCERS could easily administer the compound, Gerrits said, by mixing specified amounts into feed given to the female breeding herd. The females are kept on the fortified feed for 20 days. Five to seven days after they receive the last dose, the treated sows come into heat.

After making a preliminary report of his findings last year, Gerrits received inquiries from scientists and hog producers all over the world. They recognized that the new procedure could make possible the greatest advance in hog production since the development of antibiotics.

First, the compound could make artificial insemination practical in hog production. Artificial insemination has not increased in the hog industry, as it has in the dairy industry, because boar semen cannot be stored for more than a few days, and there has been no way to induce or delay heat in female hogs.

Artificial insemination makes possible maximum use of boars with proved capacity to sire pigs that gain rapidly and efficiently and that yield high quality lean meat. This should provide more lean pork to consumers without any increase in pork prices.

Second, producers could utilize equipment, buildings, and labor more efficiently if sows farrowed all at the same time, thus reducing the overhead cost per pig marketed.

Third, the use of the compound could help prevent disease cycles. Present continuous farrowing results in a buildup of diseases of very small pigs. If, however, litters were all the same age, the disease cycle would be minimized.

FOURTH, hog producers could plan their yearly program so they would have a given number of pigs ready for market at specified times.

Fifth, use of the compound to synchronize heat periods would facilitate such basic research studies as determining the influence of the mother on the development of unborn young, which requires the transplanting of living embryos from one animal to another.

County Girl Winner of Dairy Award

DONNA KEMPTON

Donna Kempton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kempton, Route 2, Williamsport, has been selected as the winner of the Ohio 4-H Club Dairy Efficiency Award.

This award is made based upon the activity records and quality of work of the individual members. Each county in the state submits entries in this activity.

Miss Kempton is a member of the Perry Farmers of Tomorrow and the Perry Twp. Future Homemakers 4-H clubs. Her club advisers are Ellwyn Hulst and Dick Somers in the livestock club, and Mrs. Paul Fels and Mrs. Donald Kempton in the home economics club.

She has completed nine years of 4-H club work. This includes 37 projects, both dairy and home economics.

DONNA has held all offices in her local club and is active in the Junior Leader Club and as a 4-H camp counselor.

A few of her achievements in County Fair competition include: grand champion Jersey female and twice reserve grand champion Jersey female.

As the winner of the State Dairy Efficiency Award, Miss Kempton will receive an all expense paid trip to the International Dairy Show in Chicago Dec. 2-4. This award is made possible by the Central Ohio and Northern Ohio Breeding Assns.

Now is the time to stop and think. How safe is your home? Do you: 1. Keep drugs, poisons and household chemicals out of toddlers' reach? 2. Keep these supplies away from foods? 3. Having a chicken dinner sometime soon? Here are a few tips from the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service to help you choose your chicken.

1. Look for the round inspection mark for wholesomeness and the shield for quality.

2. Allow one-half to one pound of ready-to-cook chicken per serving, depending on the method of cooking. When broiling or barbecuing estimate 1/4 to 1/2 a bird per person. If frying, roasting, or stewing, allow 1/2 pound per individual.

3. In selecting frozen chicken, be sure the wrappers are not torn or broken and the poultry is frozen.

Enjoy your chicken dinner!

Mice Problem Most Evident When Cool Weather Comes

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

The pest of the month is mice.

You never have just one mouse. Mice and other rodents will be seeking shelter for the winter and even the cool weather of the last few days will start them toward our homes, which are warm the year around.

This is a good time to check openings around window frames, plumbing pipes, electrical conduits, and anything else that goes through the foundation wall. Any space as large as 1/4 inch will permit a mouse to enter.

Careful inspection is necessary. It is easy to overlook a hole that would permit entrance by a mouse.

Don't forget limbs of trees that overhang roofs. Sometimes these can be trimmed or cut back.

AN INSPECTION of the attic from the inside will reveal holes that will need to be stopped up with materials impervious to rodent activities. If steel wool is used, it should be the rust-proof kind. If hardware cloth is used, it should be galvanized.

You cannot be too careful in your inspection and plugging of holes. Ready-mixed concrete can be purchased that requires only the addition of water.

Inspect accessible dirt areas beneath your home. You may have to crawl on your tummy to accomplish this. Daylight will show through any openings that you may have missed. These should be sealed, also.

Treat this crawl space with a soil insecticide, preferably chlordane. It seems to have some deterrent effect on rodents. In addition, it will kill insect pests that might migrate into a home.

After the mouse-proofing is finished, you may need some baits. There are many kinds that will kill mice and rats if they will accept it.

Bill Delaplaine, Extension Pest Control specialist, suggests the anticoagulant (warfarin).

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new immigration act may look like just one more item in the long list of accomplishments by the 1965 Congress, but it is more than that.

It is part and product of a turbulent time — the past 20 years — which future historians will probably consider the most revolutionary period in the history of man.

In those 20 years: The great colonial powers, exhausted by war, surrendered their possessions and men everywhere and of all races developed a sense of freedom, or nationalism, or in many places, if not all, an appreciation for the dignity of man.

The United States was swept along in this global revolution in thinking and gradually and grudgingly, particularly in the South, began to undo centuries of segregated injustice to Negroes.

The immigration bill passed Thursday by both houses, ending 41 years of limiting immigration by nationality, is simply an extension of the new, but far from complete, American revolution against discrimination.

It has a more immediately practical side, of course, since it is hardly intelligent for the United States to discriminate among nations when it is trying to persuade as many as possible to be friends, if not allies.

The world itself had passed beyond the simple primitive days of unsophisticated contest between nations, although they persisted, and now was in the great contest between ideologies.

Meanwhile 117 nations through the United Nations for the first time truly, if not always, began to cooperate to preserve peace although they have yet to prove they can try it indefinitely or achieve it absolutely.

It was in these 20 years that nations developed a weapon of war, the hydrogen bomb, so ghastly it may scare all of them out of making big war again, although this, too, has yet to be proved.

And if it is proved it will be more a tribute to fear than to reason.

Always, of course, the success of the new experiences and experiments depend upon the common sense of man, which unfortunately has been pitifully anthropoidal and even fiendish through all the centuries.

Breeding System For Hogs Studied

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Can sows be brought into heat at the same time, thus permitting synchronized breeding and farrowing?

In tests at Beltsville, Md., 132 gilts and sows were given a synthetic drug in their ration, brought into heat simultaneously and bred artificially. Of those continuing in the tests through farrowing, all gave birth to their young within a 3-day period.

The sows averaged eight pigs per litter, about the same as control animals used for comparison, and length of gestation was normal. To date, the treatment had no apparent ill effects on any of the pigs, an important consideration in the tests.

ARS animal psychologist R. J. Gerrits is conducting the studies, using a compound called Match, a shortened version coined from the chemical name — 1-a-methylallylthiocarbonyl-2-methylthiocarbonyl-hydrazine (I.C.I.33.828).

The compound, developed and patented in England, is now being examined by the Food and Drug Administration — a necessary step before it can be cleared for use by farmers.

HOG PRODUCERS could easily administer the compound, Gerrits said, by mixing specified amounts into feed given to the female breeding herd. The females are kept on the fortified feed for 20 days. Five to seven days after they receive the last dose, the treated sows come into heat.

After making a preliminary report of his findings last year, Gerrits received inquiries from scientists and hog producers all over the world. They recognized that the new procedure could make possible the greatest advance in hog production since the development of antibiotics.

First, the compound could make artificial insemination practical in hog production. Artificial insemination has not increased in the hog industry, as it has in the dairy industry, because boar semen cannot be stored for more than a few days, and there has been no way to induce or delay heat in female hogs.

Artificial insemination makes possible maximum use of boars with proved capacity to sire pigs that gain rapidly and efficiently and that yield high quality lean meat. This should provide more lean pork to consumers without any increase in pork prices.

Second, producers could utilize equipment, buildings, and labor more efficiently if sows farrowed all at the same time, thus reducing the overhead cost per pig marketed.

Third, the use of the compound could help prevent disease cycles. Present continuous farrowing results in a buildup of diseases of very small pigs. If, however, litters were all the same age, the disease cycle would be minimized.

FOURTH, hog producers could plan their yearly program so they would have a given number of pigs ready for market at specified times.

Fifth, use of the compound to synchronize heat periods would facilitate such basic research studies as determining the influence of the mother on the development of unborn young, which requires the transplanting of living embryos from one animal to another.

Travel Abroad Warms Pontiff

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope Paul Americans will see may appear to be a vastly different man from the Pope Paul Romans see.

Travel does things to him. In the Holy Land and India he seemed to be a warmer man, responding to the crowds around him and evoking a response.

At home, in his own diocese of Rome, he is often taken for granted. The crowds are used to seeing pontiffs, and sometimes it seems they lack enthusiasm.

Those who know Pope Paul say he is a warm but basically shy person who finds it difficult to stir a crowd without some help from the crowd itself.

When he travels, things are different. He is swept up in meeting new people and seeing new things. The crowds are livelier than Rome's. They haven't seen a Pope before.

"They inspire him, and he inspires them," said a Vatican prelate who traveled with Pope Paul to India and the Holy Land.

His aides will never forget how he led thousands of Indian school children singing a hymn. He stood on a platform and waved his arms like a choir leader. His steel-blue eyes were shining.

At the Vatican, where he appears in public at least once a week, the slightly built pontiff often seems to be a stern, ascetic figure.

Only on rare occasions does he show in Rome the spirit he displays when traveling. One such instance was his visit to a Gypsy camp outside Rome last Sunday, his 68th birthday. He joined the Gypsies in rhythmic handclapping as they sang a Gypsy melody.

But it was a crowd of Gypsies, not Romans.

Pope Paul and the Romans are old acquaintances.

Of the 45 years since he became a priest, he has spent 35 in Rome or at the Vatican. He was a prominent aide to Popes Pius I and Pius XII.

But his background is north Italian.

He was born Giovanni Battista—John the Baptist—Montini Sept. 26, 1897, in the northern town of Concesio, five miles north of Brescia. His father ran a Roman Catholic daily in Brescia, a journalistic background that Pope Paul has often recalled. On his flight from Rome to Bombay, at an altitude of 30,000 feet, Pope Paul gave history's first papal news conference, answering questions of newsmen who flew with him to India.

Giovanni Battista Montini was ordained a priest in 1920. After three years of graduate studies in Rome and a year in Warsaw, Poland, as secretary to the apostolic nuncio, he entered the Vatican Secretariat of State. He rose steadily. Pius XI made him substitute secretary of state in 1937, and Pius XII promoted him to prosecretary of state in 1952.

The career in the secretariat ended after 31 years, when Pius XII sent him north to Milan as archbishop of the most important diocese in Italy outside Rome.

Eight years later, in June 1963, Giovanni Battista Montini returned to Rome for the conclave of cardinals that elected him successor to Pope John XIII.

Pope's Visit Seen Boosting U.N. Prestige

NEW YORK (AP) — When Pope Paul VI appears before the United Nations General Assembly Monday, he enters a multipolitical atmosphere into which no Pope has ever ventured before.

And by his act, he registers his Church's backing to the purposes of that international organization.

It is a rare boost, coming in a critical time of the global body's life.

Not only does it emphasize "the compelling papal concern for peace" but also "the confidence the Holy See has in the ability of the United Nations as an effective peacekeeping operation," says the Pilot, official church publication of the Boston archdiocese.

"It is plain that Pope Paul is giving support to the ideals of the international organization and, through the prestige of his high office, adding strength to its efforts around the world," Pilot said.

That unusual reinforcement comes amid explosive conflicts in the world, and in a period when the United Nations itself is struggling out of its own internal problems which have threatened to immobilize it.

The circumstances are charged with extraordinary elements and nuances. It brings the influence of religion directly into the world political arena.

In that setting, the most powerful church leader will stand among representatives of a welter of systems and ideologies, including Communist regimes overtly opposed to religion.

"His choice of a rostrum," comments the Catholic News of the New York archdiocese, "must impress on the world that for all its defects the United Nations is more promising than any other organ men have for saving peace."

Similar to that body, the church represented by the Pope has a worldwide constituency.

Yet it is of a different kind—a spiritual rather than a political institution, a global family of unity rather than an apparatus of power blocs, conflict and negotiation.

When its leader acts to bolster the efforts of an organization which is contrasting in nature but parallel in scope, there seems likely to be some weighty impact.

Pope Paul, like his predecessor, John XXIII, has repeatedly voiced support for the goals of the United Nations, and wishes for its success.

"To those good wishes he now gives extraordinary and dramatic witness by his visit," says Bishop John J. Dougherty, president of Seton Hall University and representative of U.S. Catholic bishops for U.N. affairs.

Adding to the unusual aspects, the Pope himself is a chief of state—of the tiny 106-acre Vatican City enclave in Italy—as well as head of a vast religious domain.

The Vatican does not have member status at the United Nations. It does have an observer, as do Monaco, South Korea and South Viet Nam. But observers do not vote, and ordinarily may not make speeches from the floor.

Pope Paul will receive the same protocol honors extended to Britain's Queen Elizabeth II in 1957. The British monarch also heads a religious domain, the Church of England, as well as a nation.

But while the reception accorded her was based on her national office, the Pope is being received as a world spiritual figure, not a political ruler.

Special Auto Fitted for Papal Visit

CHICAGO (AP) — The auto in which Pope Paul VI will ride during his visit to New York City was unveiled today, a reconstructed 1964 black Lincoln Continental executive limousine.

The rear compartment is roofless, but a transparent top can be put in place in case of bad weather.

The right rear seat can be raised as much as seven inches so that spectators will have a better view of the pontiff. The automobile is designed to carry 13 persons, including six security guards on the running boards.

It is equipped with a public address system and lamps to illuminate the Pope, and three flags at the front of the car — the American flag, the United Nations flag, and the Vatican flag.

A 10 - inch - high Plexiglass windscreen is mounted at the roof level in front of the rear compartment. A spokesman said that neither the car nor any of its accessories are bullet-proof.

Ralph Peters, production planning director for the Lincoln-Mercury Division, told newsmen the Ford Motor Co. offered use of the automobile to the Vatican and confronted with Vatican suggestions in having it refitted for the papal visit.

Mother To Face Jury Decision

CLEVELAND (AP) — Assistant Prosecutor Phil Marquardt said Friday he will ask a Cuyahoga County grand jury next Tuesday to return a first-degree murder indictment against Mrs. Mariann Colby.

The Shaker Heights housewife 40, is charged with murder in the fatal shooting of 8-year-old John Cremer Young Jr. last Aug. 24.

Mrs. Colby pleaded innocent and told detectives the shooting was accidental.

The shooting occurred in the kitchen of her home. The Youngs live two doors away and the victim often played with the Colby's son, Dane, 9.

Mrs. Colby is in Cuyahoga County jail.

Travel Abroad Warms Pontiff

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope Paul Americans will see may appear to be a vastly different man from the Pope Paul Romans see.

Travel does things to him. In the Holy Land and India he seemed to be a warmer man, responding to the crowds around him and evoking a response.

At home, in his own diocese of Rome, he is often taken for granted. The crowds are used to seeing pontiffs, and sometimes it seems they lack enthusiasm.

Those who know Pope Paul say he is a warm but basically shy person who finds it difficult to stir a crowd without some help from the crowd itself.

When he travels, things are different. He is swept up in meeting new people and seeing new things. The crowds are livelier than Rome's. They haven't seen a Pope before.

"They inspire him, and he inspires them," said a Vatican prelate who traveled with Pope Paul to India and the Holy Land.

His aides will never forget how he led thousands of Indian school children singing a hymn. He stood on a platform and waved his arms like a choir leader. His steel-blue eyes were shining.

At the Vatican, where he appears in public at least once a week, the slightly built pontiff often seems to be a stern, ascetic figure.

Only on rare occasions does he show in Rome the spirit he displays when traveling. One such instance was his visit to a Gypsy camp outside Rome last Sunday, his 68th birthday. He joined the Gypsies in rhythmic handclapping as they sang a Gypsy melody.

But it was a crowd of Gypsies, not Romans.

Pope Paul and the Romans are old acquaintances. Of the 45 years since he became a priest, he has spent 35 in Rome or at the Vatican. He was a prominent aide to Popes Pius I and Pius XII.

But his background is north Italian.

He was born Giovanni Battista—John the Baptist—Montini Sept. 26, 1897, in the northern town of Concesio, five miles north of Brescia. His father ran a Roman Catholic daily in Brescia, a journalistic background that Pope Paul has often recalled. On his flight from Rome to Bombay, at an altitude of 30,000 feet, Pope Paul gave history's first papal news conference, answering questions of newsmen who flew with him to India.

The incentives, permitted under federal statute, will allow for exemption of earned income under certain circumstances in three programs—aid to dependent children, aid for the aged, and aid for the disabled.

White said his department decided to adopt the incentive program after receiving notification from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare that another program has been rejected. That program would have allowed families receiving aid to dependent children to earn the difference between the state allowances and 100 per cent standards.

Under the program to go into effect next month, each child in a family—not to exceed three—will be permitted to earn a maximum of $50 per month without reduction of aid to dependent children money to the family.

Under the aid to the aged and aid for the disabled programs, White said, recipients will be allowed to earn up to $50 a month without loss in welfare payments.

Though it is a native American grain, corn is more widely cultivated around the world than any other crop.

Giovanni Battista Montini was ordained a priest in 1920. After three years of graduate studies in Rome and a year in Warsaw, Poland, as secretary to the apostolic nuncio, he entered the Vatican Secretariat of State. He rose steadily. Pius XI made him substitute secretary of state in 1937, and Pius II promoted him to prosecretary of state in 1952.

The career in the secretariat ended after 31 years, when Pius XII sent him north to Milan as archbishop of the most important diocese in Italy outside Rome.

Eight years later, in June 1963, Giovanni Battista Montini returned to Rome for the conclave of cardinals that elected him successor to Pope John XIII.

Pope's Visit Seen Boosting U.N. Prestige

NEW YORK (AP) — When Pope Paul VI appears before the United Nations General Assembly Monday, he enters a multipolitical atmosphere into which no Pope has ever ventured before.

And by his act, he registers his Church's backing to the purposes of that international organization.

It is a rare boost, coming in a critical time of the global body's life.

Not only does it emphasize "the compelling papal concern for peace" but also "the confidence the Holy See has in the ability of the United Nations as an effective peacekeeping operation," says the Pilot, official church publication of the Boston archdiocese.

"It is plain that Pope Paul is giving support to the ideals of the international organization and, through the prestige of his high office, adding strength to its efforts around the world," Pilot said.

That unusual reinforcement comes amid explosive conflicts in the world, and in a period when the United Nations itself is struggling out of its own internal problems which have threatened to immobilize it.

The circumstances are charged with extraordinary elements and nuances. It brings the influence of religion directly into the world political arena.

In that setting, the most powerful church leader will stand among representatives of a welter of systems and ideologies, including Communist regimes overtly opposed to religion.

"His choice of a rostrum," comments the Catholic News of the New York archdiocese, "must impress on the world that for all its defects the United Nations is more promising than any other organ men have for saving peace."

Similar to that body, the church represented by the Pope has a worldwide constituency.

Yet it is of a different kind—a spiritual rather than a political institution, a global family of unity rather than an apparatus of power blocs, conflict and negotiation.

When its leader acts to bolster the efforts of an organization which is contrasting in nature but parallel in scope, there seems likely to be some weighty impact.

Pope Paul, like his predecessor, John XXIII, has repeatedly voiced support for the goals of the United Nations, and wishes for its success.

"To those good wishes he now gives extraordinary and dramatic witness by his visit," says Bishop John J. Dougherty, president of Seton Hall University and representative of U.S. Catholic bishops for U.N. affairs.

Adding to the unusual aspects, the Pope himself is a chief of state—of the tiny 106-acre Vatican City enclave in Italy—as well as head of a vast religious domain.

The Vatican does not have member status at the United Nations. It does have an observer, as do Monaco, South Korea and South Viet Nam. But observers do not vote, and ordinarily may not make speeches from the floor.

Pope Paul will receive the same protocol honors extended to Britain's Queen Elizabeth II in 1957. The British monarch also heads a religious domain, the Church of England, as well as a nation.

But while the reception accorded her was based on her national office, the Pope is being received as a world spiritual figure, not a political ruler.

Controls Remain

During the last 30 years the administrations in Washington have almost consistently sponsored farm legislation designed to increase farm income and insure a plentiful supply of products of the soil. Only Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson in recent years made any attempt to lift the farmer from federal control and return his products to the operations of a free market, and his efforts had little permanent success.

Throughout most of the last three decades the nation's largest farm organization, the American Farm Bureau, has opposed further regulation of the farmer on the grounds such regulation has put the farmer in an ever-tightening harness of bureaucracy without keeping the rural economy in pace with national prosperity. Also, the federation points out, mountainous surpluses have reached such proportions the United States has to give food away to keep it from spoiling.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has not been successful in selling the advantages of a free market to Congress, so it will try a new approach. It is taking its case to the consumer and the taxpayer — who pay the cost of federal farm programs.

It is the Farm Bureau's contention that the majority of farmers themselves do not want federal controls, but it was unable to sway urban congressmen with this argument. Even after the wheat referendum of 1963, in which the wheat growers overwhelmingly voted an end to controls, apparently Congress remained unconvinced and passed still more stringent farm regulations.

In concentrating future appeals in the grass roots, the Farm Bureau hopes to convince sufficient numbers of voters of the folly of continuing and expanding government interference in agriculture. As a result of improved public relations with the folks at home, the bureau figures congressmen will start receiving mail supporting the free market philosophy from persons in all sections of the nation, urban as well as rural.

It is a novel approach, to conduct a grass roots appeal on the scale which will be needed here. There is a large degree of uncertainty about the outcome, considering the apathy of the public to any issue. But it will be refreshing to witness an appeal to the individual to do his own lobbying instead of turning this responsibility over to a large pressure group.

What About Food Costs?

It may surprise taxpayers to learn that the Agriculture Department of the United States is as interested in consumers as it is in farmers. Anyway, this is what Secretary Freeman says in the preface to "Consumers All," a book put out by the department.

"The real beneficiary of agricultural productivity and abundance has been, is now, and will continue to be the American consumer," professes Mr. Freeman. And by way of proof, the book tells consumers how to benefit from a variety of suggestions.

The advice — from no fewer than 133

authors — ranges from how to finance a house to wiring a garage, replacing a zipper and getting rid of crab grass. There's even a chapter on "children money (suggested suitable allowance for 6-to-9-year-olds, 50 cents a week).

Missing, however, is what to do about record high food costs. The food component in the monthly consumer price index has been rising for years. Apparently Mr. Freeman has not yet found a way to turn productivity and abundance into lower food prices.

So don't look for it in "Consumers All."

Perhaps To Dream

A learned psychiatrist has come up with a thunderstruck theory. He says that man may be able to get along with hardly any sleep. He claims that it is not even certain that sleep is entirely necessary.

After telling how a 17-year-old boy went without sleep for 11 consecutive days, and how he needed very little extra sleep to catch up on what he had already missed, the psychiatrist said "no organic changes have been conclusively demonstrated to be caused specifically by sleep deprivation."

This is indeed terrifying to contemplate. If the psychiatrist isn't talking through his sheepskin, think of all the time most adults have wasted. It may keep many of them awake nights just worrying about it.

especially since May, to borrow from the banks or to float new debt issues such as corporate bonds or debentures.

Public offerings of corporate bonds are running 35 per cent ahead of last year and private placements of such securities are 30 per cent larger.

Interest rates have risen in sympathy, although there are other reasons for the greater yields now obtainable in both the government and corporate bond markets.

The average yield on long-term U.S. Treasury securities has climbed above 4.25 per cent. New issues of investment-grade corporate bonds now yield between 4.65 and 4.90 per cent. These are the highest rates in six years. The average yield on municipal bonds has climbed by more than one-eighth of a percentage point in the last six weeks.

The volume of commercial bank loans has been expanding fast, too — rising by 11 per cent so far this year, which is a third again as fast as in 1964 and four times the rate of increase in the 1956-59 period. As the demand for bank loans has increased since May, so has the pressure to raise bank lending rates, despite the official frowns in Washington.

Economists at the First National City Bank note a surge recently in the demand of business for short-term loans, partly to build up stocks. But demand for loans with maturities of more than one year has jumped by an unprecedented 23 per cent at New York City banks this year. These loans are commonly used to finance fixed investments, such as new plants or equipment.

Greater borrowing has been a prime cause of rising yields from corporate and other securities. But the bank economists list other reasons: possibility that the U.S. Treasury will step up its borrowing to finance the Viet Nam war; some early signs of price inflation; and expectations that the Federal Reserve Board might tighten its monetary policy.

All this has led many corporations to issue bonds this year to finance their ever more grandiose plans for expansion.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The reading of X-ray films is one of the most highly skilled sciences in the practice of medicine. The exact diagnosis and the treatment of the patient often depends on the accuracy of the interpretation of the X-ray films.

Sometimes the black and white shadings on the black background are barely distinguishable. This places a great responsibility on the physician, who must, from these pictures, pinpoint the stomach ulcer, the gallbladder stones, the kinking of an artery to the brain, a bleeding vessel in the esophagus or a tiny defect in the heart.

In order to see more clearly every hidden corner and cranny in the body, one of the ultimate goals in science has been the development of X-ray in color.

Now, a group of physicians in France have combined their talents with those of engineers and have succeeded in converting ordinary X-rays into 3-color films.

The original discovery was used for clearly outlining arteries and veins in all parts of the body. It is hoped that this new technique will be successful in every other type of X-ray examination.

Are there any hazards of radiation when regular yearly X-rays are taken of the chest and the teeth?

This question is repeatedly asked of me by readers. The fact that it recurs so often highlights the fears that many people have of overexposure to X-ray radiation.

Today's techniques are performed so rapidly and with such minimum exposure that there virtually is no danger of radiation when examinations are done at such long intervals.

Physicians are on the alert to avoid the possibility of overexposure. Their recommendation for X-rays is therefore based on absolute safety for their patients.

Only those X-rays that must be repeated to follow the progress of a patient's condition are ordered by the physician.

Dentists rigidly limit the number and the frequency of

X-rays taken in their offices.

When a patient is treated with X-ray therapy what hazards does this present?

X-ray therapy is a form of treatment in which a concentrated amount of X-rays bombard diseased tissues or a tumor in order to destroy it.

This frequently requires a tremendous amount of X-ray, far greater than is ever used in the routine process of examination of the chest or other parts of the body.

Only the exact site of the disease is treated. The normal tissue that surrounds the disease is thoroughly protected.

City Boy Finds Personal Eden

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Every man at some time harbors the desire to own a piece of green earth.

Many people who work in the city satisfy this yearning by buying a small Valhalla in the suburbs measuring 60 by 100 feet.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

One of the annual "Label days" of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Assn. was to be held in Trinity Lutheran Church parish house.

Senior SOS Club of Circleville High School held its formal initiation for 25 new members in the social room of the high school.

The Senior Intermediate Class of the Circleville Gospel Center Church held an election of officers.

TEN YEARS AGO

Thanks to more than one-half inch of rainfall that soaked the area this week, September's rainfall here was able to show a moist profit.

Ohio University's extension division announced that a class in craft and hobby work and elementary industrial arts would be held at Circleville High School.

R. S. Swenson, County Extension agent, said Pickaway County's corn yield would be somewhat less this year than last.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Charles Dresbach of E. Mound St., returned home after a two-week visit with Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Reber, Kenton.

Three candidates were initiated when the Circleville Lodge of Elks conducted its annual inspection ceremony.

Auto sales in Pickaway County for September totaled 19.

Then they wear out their lives paying for it and going to and from it.

Some of my best friends and worst enemies dwell in the suburbs, and I feel equally sorry for them all.

They don't live where they work and they don't work where they live. They are people in eternal transit. Actually, they aren't people at all. They are prisoners of back and forth.

Their pleasures are adjusted to a timetable. Their greatest daily victory or defeat is to catch or miss a certain train or bus that carries them into the city in the morning or home from the city in the evening.

Suburbs make me bilious. Whenever I hear a suburbanite praise his lot in life it sounds to me like a slave admiring his chains.

Yet, much as I dislike the suburbs, I share all men's desire for a personal Eden.

The quest of it has occupied most of the weekends of the quarter century I have lived in New York. The way I do it is this: First, I get my wife to carry in the Sunday newspaper, because if any back in the family has to be sprung it might as well be hers.

Next I spread out the editorial section for the cat. Then I lie down on the floor, open the real estate section and spend endless happy hours looking for bargains.

Then, while out on a stroll, I discovered the green spot on earth I would most like to have as my own.

It is an ideal setting for a perfect home. It has picturesque boulders and a tremendous view of the city's skyline. I could walk to it from work.

There is a lake in it big enough to row on. It echoes in summer to the music of a carousel. It has winding paths in it, little glades to pause and dream in, plenty of space to pitch horseshoes or play baseball.

It throbs with all kinds of wild life—alligators, elephants, lions, squirrels and polar bears.

The trouble with this paradise I'd like to build a permanent home in is that it isn't for sale. They call it Central Park.

Republican leadership met in Washington to start on the 1966 congressional campaign. It's a kind of standing committee looking for seats.

The GOP leadership has been concerned about splinter groups draining money away. It's the splinters that add up to the chips.

Idaho's Governor Smylie said it was time to discuss the splinter groups and "have it out on the floor." A convenient location.

Controls Remain

During the last 30 years the administrations in Washington have almost consistently sponsored farm legislation designed to increase farm income and insure a plentiful supply of products of the soil. Only Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson in recent years made any attempt to lift the farmer from federal control and return his products to the operations of a free market, and his efforts had little permanent success.

Throughout most of the last three decades the nation's largest farm organization, the American Farm Bureau, has opposed further regulation of the farmer on the grounds such regulation has put the farmer in an ever-tightening harness of bureaucracy without keeping the rural economy in pace with national prosperity. Also, the federation points out, mountainous surpluses have reached such proportions the United States has to give food away to keep it from spoiling.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has not been successful in selling the advantages of a free market to Congress, so it will try a new approach. It is taking its case to the consumer and the taxpayer — who pay the cost of federal farm programs.

It is the Farm Bureau's contention

that the majority of farmers themselves do not want federal controls, but it was unable to sway urban congressmen with this argument. Even after the wheat referendum of 1963, in which the wheat growers overwhelmingly voted an end to controls, apparently Congress remained unconvinced and passed still more stringent farm regulations.

In concentrating future appeals in the grass roots, the Farm Bureau hopes to convince sufficient numbers of voters of the folly of continuing and expanding government interference in agriculture. As a result of improved public relations with the folks at home, the bureau figures congressmen will start receiving mail supporting the free market philosophy from persons in all sections of the nation, urban as well as rural.

It is a novel approach, to conduct a grass roots appeal on the scale which will be needed here. There is a large degree of uncertainty about the outcome, considering the apathy of the public to any issue. But it will be refreshing to witness an appeal to the individual to do his own lobbying instead of turning this responsibility over to a large pressure group.

What About Food Costs?

It may surprise taxpayers to learn that the Agriculture Department of the United States is as interested in consumers as it is in farmers. Anyway, this is what Secretary Freeman says in the preface to "Consumers All," a book put out by the department.

"The real beneficiary of agricultural productivity and abundance has been, is now, and will continue to be the American consumer," professes Mr. Freeman. And by way of proof, the book tells consumers how to benefit from a variety of suggestions.

The advice — from no fewer than 133

authors — ranges from how to finance a house to wiring a garage, replacing a zipper and getting rid of crab grass. There's even a chapter on "children money (suggested suitable allowance for 6-to-9-year-olds, 50 cents a week).

Missing, however, is what to do about record high food costs. The food component in the monthly consumer price index has been rising for years. Apparently Mr. Freeman has not yet found a way to turn productivity and abundance into lower food prices.

So don't look for it in "Consumers All."

Perhaps To Dream

A learned psychiatrist has come up with a thunderstruck theory. He says that man may be able to get along with hardly any sleep. He claims that it is not even certain that sleep is entirely necessary.

After telling how a 17-year-old boy went without sleep for 11 consecutive days, and how he needed very little extra sleep to catch up on what he had already missed, the psychiatrist said "no organic changes have been conclusively demonstrated to be caused specifically by sleep deprivation."

This is indeed terrifying to contemplate. If the psychiatrist isn't talking through his sheepskin, think of all the time most adults have wasted. It may keep many of them awake nights just worrying about it.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — The cost of financing a new school in a growing community or a new plant for a business firm has been going up. So has the cost of borrowing ready cash for the U.S. Treasury.

One reason is the big rush, especially since May, to borrow from the banks or to float new debt issues such as corporate bonds or debentures.

Public offerings of corporate bonds are running 35 per cent ahead of last year and private placements of such securities are 30 per cent larger.

Interest rates have risen in sympathy, although there are other reasons for the greater yields now obtainable in both the government and corporate bond markets.

The average yield on long-term U.S. Treasury securities has climbed above 4.25 per cent. New issues of investment-grade corporate bonds now yield between 4.65 and 4.90 per cent. These are the highest rates in six years. The average yield on municipal bonds has climbed by more than one-eighth of a percentage point in the last six weeks.

The volume of commercial bank loans has been expanding fast, too — rising by 11 per cent so far this year, which is a third again as fast as in 1964 and four times the rate of increase in the 1956-59 period. As the demand for bank loans has increased since May, so has the pressure to raise bank lending rates, despite the official frowns in Washington.

Economists at the First National City Bank note a surge recently in the demand of business for short-term loans, partly to build up stocks. But demand for loans with maturities of more than one year has jumped by an unprecedented 23 per cent at New York City banks this year. These loans are commonly used to finance fixed investments, such as new plants or equipment.

Greater borrowing has been a prime cause of rising yields from corporate and other securities. But the bank economists list other reasons: possibility that the U.S. Treasury will step up its borrowing to finance the Viet Nam war; some early signs of price inflation; and expectations that the Federal Reserve Board might tighten its monetary policy.

All this has led many corporations to issue bonds this year to finance their ever more grandiose plans for expansion.

"Watch me bite my finger off," proposed Congressman Lindsay. While the crowd chuckled, he put a finger in his mouth, then showed his hand to the youngster with the finger bent back to hide it. The five-year-old examined the hand, laughed appreciatively, and then said, "Now let me see you really bite the finger off."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The reading of X-ray films is one of the most highly skilled sciences in the practice of medicine. The exact diagnosis and the treatment of the patient often depends on the accuracy of the interpretation of the X-ray films.

Sometimes the black and white shadows on the black background are barely distinguishable. This places a great responsibility on the physician, who must, from these pictures, pinpoint the stomach ulcer, the gallbladder stones, the kinking of an artery to the brain, a bleeding vessel in the esophagus or a tiny defect in the heart.

In order to see more clearly every hidden corner and cranny in the body, one of the ultimate goals in science has been the development of X-ray in color.

Now, a group of physicians in France have combined their talents with those of engineers and have succeeded in converting ordinary X-rays into 3-color films.

The original discovery was used for clearly outlining arteries and veins in all parts of the body. It is hoped that this new technique will be successful in every other type of X-ray examination.

Are there any hazards of radiation when regular yearly X-rays are taken of the chest and the teeth?

This question is repeatedly asked of me by readers. The fact that it recurs so often highlights the fears that many people have of overexposure to X-ray radiation.

Today's techniques are performed so rapidly and with such minimum exposure that there virtually is no danger of radiation when examinations are done as such long intervals.

Physicians are on the alert to avoid the possibility of overexposure. Their recommendation for X-rays is therefore based on absolute safety for their patients.

Only those X-rays that must be repeated to follow the progress of a patient's condition are ordered by the physician.

Dentists rigidly limit the number and the frequency of

X-rays taken in their offices.

When a patient is treated with X-ray therapy what hazards does this present?

X-ray therapy is a form of treatment in which a concentrated amount of X-rays bombard diseased tissues or a tumor in order to destroy it.

This frequently requires a tremendous amount of X-ray, far greater than is ever used in the routine process of examination of the chest or other parts of the body.

Only the exact site of the disease is treated. The normal tissue that surrounds the disease is thoroughly protected.

With X-ray therapy, the dosage of the X-rays, or the cobalt, another form of X-ray treatment, is carefully calculated. The objective is to produce a maximum beneficial effect without the chance of overexposure of the healthy part of the body.

Defensive Driving Course Offered Du Pont Employees

In support of the nationwide Drivers Improvement Training program sponsored by the National Safety Council, 29 local Du Pont employees will begin a 16-hour instructors training program which will qualify them to teach the eight-hour Defensive Driving Course.

Upon the completion of the instructors training program, the course will be offered initially, to all Du Pont employees and, at a later date, to wives and other driving members of the family. Attendance will be on a voluntary basis.

Sessions will be scheduled from 7 to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday and participants will attend one night a week for four weeks, a total of eight hours. Certificates will be issued by the National Safety Council to all who complete the course.

The course has two main objectives: to teach drivers that most accidents are preventable, and to provide them with defensive driving know-how which will aid in avoiding accidents. Instructors of commercial fleets form the basis for the course.

Views on TV - Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can a television couple be sexy and married, too?

This provocative question is being tested this season by "The Farmer's Daughter." It may be an uphill struggle for the ABC comedy. After all, television audiences have grown accustomed to the pace of domestic life in which no more affection is shown than a quick kiss before hubby leaves for the office.

The average television couple comprise a churlish chucklehead and his patient, aproned wife. They have been married since heaven knows when, and their only concerns are children, bills and how to entertain the boss for dinner.

But in "The Farmer's Daughter," Inger Stevens, is a sagacious Swede, and William Windom plays a Minnesota congressman. And after two years as his housekeeper, she becomes his wife.

"I hope we will be able to show that a married couple can be sophisticated — yes, and even sexy," said Inger. "After all, he found her attractive and appealing enough to marry her. Why should we try to hide their love just because they're married?"

She admitted the hazards involved. One of them is network censorship. A script portrayed the honeymoon congressman escorting his bride to a hotel room with twin beds. His comment: "But I asked for a double bed."

"The use of the word 'bed' was absolutely forbidden," Inger reported. "It looked as if the show would have to be abandoned. But he was allowed to substitute 'accommodations' with only a glance at the bed. If the audience wants to read something into the glance, it may."

Instead of adopting housewife trappings, Inger is becoming more glamorous. "Katie wears more sophisticated clothes now," she said, "and her hair is shorter and more stylish. I think that's only natural. It shows that he has an effect on her."

G. A. Fraser will provide the initial instructors training. Volunteers who signed up for the course are: Nicholas Apostolakis, J. E. Baehr, William D. Bills, W. H. Camp, L. H. Canfield, R. A. Defensive Driving Course Offered Du Pont Employees

In support of the nationwide Drivers Improvement Training program sponsored by the National Safety Council, 29 local Du Pont employees will begin a 16-hour instructors training program which will qualify them to teach the eight-hour Defensive Driving Course.

Upon the completion of the instructors training program, the course will be offered initially, to all Du Pont employees and, at a later date, to wives and other driving members of the family. Attendance will be on a voluntary basis.

Sessions will be scheduled from 7 to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday and participants will attend one night a week for four weeks, a total of eight hours. Certificates will be issued by the National Safety Council to all who complete the course.

The course has two main objectives: to teach drivers that most accidents are preventable, and to provide them with defensive driving know-how which will aid in avoiding accidents. Instructors of commercial fleets form the basis for the course.

AS A cooperating agency of the National Safety Council, the Du Pont Co. will provide all visual aids, film, booklets and other materials used in the course, free of cost to their employees and families. Normally a maximum fee of $4 per person is charged by the cooperating agency to help defray material costs. All instructors, however, serve on a voluntary basis.

"The course may be sponsored by any local organization or group, including women's clubs, labor and farm groups, churches, industrial or business firms," A. D. Bray, Manager of the local plant advises.

"There is a great need for this type of drivers training in our community and we believe it would be a very worthwhile civic project for one of the local groups to serve as the sponsoring organization. Should there be an interest in providing this course to Circleville or Pickaway County drivers our qualified instructors, who serve on a voluntary basis, will be happy to assist in getting the program underway," Bray said.

G. A. Fraser will provide the initial instructors training.

Volunteers who signed up for the course are: Nicholas Apostolakis, J. E. Baehr, William D. Bills, W. H. Camp, L. H. Canfield, R. A. Chesney, T. H. Davis, James F. Diltz, William C. Eddy Jr., David C. Edwards, Donald W. Flierl, Robert Gerlach, J. H. Griffith, D. E. Hershey, J. R. Kelchner, Tom Matesky, R. H. Moore, D. C. Munson, J. W. O'Donnell, D. B. Schiewetz, T. R. Sloan, D. L. Snyder, D. R. Views on TV - Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can a television couple be sexy and married, too?

This provocative question is being tested this season by "The Farmer's Daughter." It may be an uphill struggle for the ABC comedy. After all, television audiences have grown accustomed to the pace of domestic life in which no more affection is shown than a quick kiss before hubby leaves for the office.

The average television couple comprise a churlish chucklehead and his patient, aproned wife. They have been married since heaven knows when, and their only concerns are children, bills and how to entertain the boss for dinner.

But in "The Farmer's Daughter," Inger Stevens, a sagacious Swede, and William Windom plays a Minnesota congressman. And after two years as his housekeeper, she becomes his wife.

"I hope we will be able to show that a married couple can be sophisticated — yes, and even sexy," said Inger. "After all, he found her attractive and appealing enough to marry her. Why should we try to hide their love just because they're married?"

She admitted the hazards involved. One of them is network censorship. A script portrayed the honeymoon congressman escorting his bride to a hotel room with twin beds. His comment: "But I asked for a double bed."

"The use of the word 'bed' was absolutely forbidden," Inger reported. "It looked as if the show would have to be abandoned. But he was allowed to substitute 'accommodations' with only a glance at the bed. If the audience wants to read something into the glance, it may."

Instead of adopting housewife trappings, Inger is becoming more glamorous. "Katie wears more sophisticated clothes now," she said, "and her hair is shorter and more stylish. I think that's only natural. It shows that he has an effect on her."

Appalachia Road Study Is Ordered

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Department of Highways said Friday the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads has approved an agreement with a Columbus firm for an engineering study on Ohio's Appalachia Highway.

Notification of the federal approval went to Gov. James A. Rhodes and Highway Director P. E. Masheter.

Masheter said Franklin Engineering Associates will start preliminary engineering immediately on the 176-mile "corridor route" between Cincinnati and Belpre in Washington County on the Ohio River.

The study will cost $238,500 and be shared on a 70-30 basis by the Appalachia Regional Commission and Ohio.

Franklin Engineering will determine what existing sections of highways within the corridor are acceptable for use as part of the Appalachia system, and where complete new alignment and construction will be necessary. Masheter said nearly 42 miles of the 176-mile east-west route may be acceptable for use by present-day standards.

The west coast of Greenland between Disko and Melville Bays is the spawning ground for most of the icebergs of the North Atlantic. The annual crop of icebergs on this coast is estimated at about 7,500.

Dear Abby: Live It Down!

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother put an ad in our local paper asking for information on his wife's running around with other men. I understand he got a lot of answers and is using them to prove his wife is an unfit mother. As far as I am concerned our family's name in this town is mud. I told my husband that if he didn't move the ids and me away from here was going to leave him. He says that just because his brother is a jackass doesn't mean that he is one, too. And besides, he says he has too much invested in his business here just to pick up and move because of the talk.

What should I do?

DEAR MUD: It takes only one jackass to make a laughingstock of an entire family. The talk will die down eventually, so stay with your husband. Moving is no solution. "Talk" has a way of moving, too.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who asks his wife to dig into her purse to settle up a bill in a restaurant? That's my husband. Although

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Live It Down!

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother put an ad in our local paper asking for information on his wife's running around with other men. I understand he got a lot of answers and is using them to prove his wife is an unfit mother. As far as I am concerned our family's name in this town is mud. I told my husband that if he didn't move the kids and me away from here was going to leave him. He says that just because his brother is a jackass doesn't mean that he is one, too. And besides, he says he has too much invested in his business here just to pick up and move because of the talk.

What should I do?

OUR NAME IS MUD
DEAR MUD: It takes only one jackass to make a laughing-stock of an entire family. The talk will die down eventually, so stay with your husband. Moving is no solution. "Talk" has a way of moving, too.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who asks his wife to dig into her purse to settle up a bill in a restaurant? That's my husband. Although everyone knows I work, I would just as soon preserve the illusion that my husband is the breadwinner of the family. It's not the money. I wouldn't mind giving him the money at home if he's "short" or forgot to cash a check, but I think it looks terrible for outsiders to see a woman paying for things when she's with a man. How do I put a stop to this? He laughingly calls me his—

"CASH REGISTER"

DEAR CASH: Get the finances straightened out at home and tell hubby that from now on the "Cash Register" is ringing up NO SALE in public.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine tells everyone she weighs exactly the same now as she did when she was married 15 years ago. That was 110 pounds, which is what I weigh. She is at least 15 pounds heavier than I am. The next time she makes that statement at my house, should I bring out the bathroom scale and dare her to stand on it?

HATES LIARS

DEAR HATES: No. It's bad enough for a woman to lose her figure without having to lose face, too.

DEAR ABBY: For the past year I've been riding to work and back with a man who works where I work. He is a lot older than me, married (so am I) and I assure you he means nothing to me but free transportation.

The other morning, on the way to work, this man said to me, "In case anyone asks you, you are PAYING for these rides because that's what I told my wife and I don't want a liar made out of me." Abby, I don't know his wife and can't imagine where I would ever meet her, but this bothered me. Sure, these rides save me a lot of money, and I appreciate them, but I don't like this set-up. The man has never gotten out of line, although he has asked some rather personal questions, but I always changed the subject. What should I do?

RIDING ALONG
DEAR RIDING: Find another mode of transportation. Money isn't everything. If you sleep with dogs, you'll get up with fleas.

Tigers Shocked, 20-15, at Miami Trace

DOUBLE TEAMED — Steve Dade fights for yards but Terry McBea (41) and another Panther hang on. He started as a cornerback on defense and shared the quarterback spot with junior Danny Gibbs.

Panthers Display Early Initiative

By STEVE JONES

The Circleville High School football team was surprised at Miami Trace last night, taking a 20-15 loss at the hands of the Black Panther griders.

It was the first time in the history of the South Central Ohio League grid rivalry between the two schools that the Trace Panthers have beaten the Tigers.

And beat Circleville they did, as they outgained, outblocked, and outdefended the Tigers for most of the game.

The first half belonged strictly to Miami Trace. The host school led, 14-7, as the teams headed for the locker at intermission.

DURING that first half, Miami Trace controlled the ball with a crunching ground game that ground out 174 yards and consumed the greater portion of the 24 minutes of play.

All three of Miami Trace's touchdowns were on the ground and were scored by Bob Gifford, a powerful 190-pound senior fullback. He also scored the two extra points after the first TD.

Redleg Bats Boom 17-2 Giant Rout

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds pushed San Francisco to within one game of elimination from the National League pennant race by burying the Giants 17-2 Friday night behind a four-homer barrage triggered by Frank Robinson.

The Giants' defeat, their seventh in the last 10 games, left them two games behind National League leading Los Angeles with two games to go. The Dodgers, despite a 2-0 loss to Milwaukee, clinched at least a tie for the pennant when San Francisco lost.

The Giants only hope is to win their final two games while the Dodgers lose both, forcing a playoff.

San Francisco Manager Herman Franks used eight pitchers in an attempt to stem the Reds' explosive 21-hit attack, but the game was actually decided when Robinson and Gordy Coleman homered in a four-run first inning. Given that support, Sammy Ellis breezed to his 22nd victory with an eight-hit, no-error performance.

The Reds snapped a five-game losing streak and quickly applied the coup de grace to the Giants with the four first-inning runs.

After Pete Rose and Vada Pinson singled off starter and loser Bob Bolin, Robinson hit his 33rd homer far over the left-field fence. Coleman followed with a 420-foot homer and Bolin left, having retired one man, with the muffled boos of 29,220 Candlestick Park fans as accompaniment.

Tiger Pointers

"We're not the kind of ball club that can give 75 per cent effort and win," Tiger Coach Paul Starr said after the game.

"We beat ourselves tonight and you can quote me on that."

"This Miami Trace is a fine ball club, and we weren't ready for them, physically or mentally. They did exactly what we expected them to do, but we couldn't stop them. We didn't work."

And the Tiger coach pointed out that an attitude of complacency his team had all week long was shared by nearly everybody in Circleville.

"I'll bet a hundred people asked me how many touchdowns we were going to win by during the week," Starr said. "Nobody seemed to believe this Miami Trace team was as good as they are."

The Panthers' Ronnie Salyers was the leading ground gainer, picking up 125 yards in 14 carries. Included in that total was a 61-yard romp that set up the third Trace touchdown.

Bob Gifford, the bread and butter ball carrier for the winners, gained 98 yards in 20 carries.

The leading ground gainer for Circleville was Howard Dade with 117 yards in 16 carries. That brings his total for the year to 589 yards. His touchdown pass reception plus the two extra points raises his total to 48 for the season.

Mike Ramey picked up only 39 yards — lowest total for the year. With a touchdown to his credit Ramey now has 28 points for the Tigers. In total yardage, he has picked up 423.

Steve Dade intercepted the first pass the Miami Trace team tried. It was his fourth interception in two games.

It was homecoming at Miami Trace. Next week it is homecoming in Tiger town. The week after that it will be homecoming at Wilmington when the Tigers are there.

One of the Circleville band buses lost a headlight enroute to the ball game. Rod List, who was driving, stopped in Washington C. H. to repair the light, and before he got to the football game, it was almost time for the pregame homecoming activities to begin.

The Tiger bandsmen did not participate in the pre-game musical program. But they entertained the fans along with the Miami Trace unit at halftime.

Since the days of Asa Elsea, who went on to become an outstanding placekicker for Bowling Green State University, Circleville has had a gridder with a talented toe.

Besides Elsea there were Ray Taylor, Tom Tootle, Gene Smith and Charlie Smith through the years. It looked as though the Tigers might have come to the end of the placekickers, as in the first three games not a single one point conversion was scored.

But last night, following the first touchdown, Bob Tootle, a sophomore quarterback candidate who broke his arm early in practice, booted a conversion.

It was the first game action for Tootle this year, although he has not missed a practice session in spite of the injured arm.

Parkersburg, Coach Starr's High School alma mater, was shut out by Marietta High School, 14-0, last night.

Harrier, 17, Finishes Last; Teammates Cheer

DERBY, Kan. (AP) — Ray Patterson, 17, finished behind the leaders in the public high school cross-country meet, but his teammates cheered wildly when he crossed the line.

Why? Because Ray is blind. He doesn't take track too seriously. He just runs to keep in shape for the wrestling team.

Ray, a senior, lost his sight during radium treatments for cancer when he was 3. He went to a school for the blind until this year.

PANTHERS AND TIGERS — Howard Dade (49), Circleville's leading ground gainer, is swarmed by the Panther defense, Randy Kelly (12) and Frank Wharton (32) stop Dade as Steve Evans (22) looks on. Mike Wells (75) supplies a block. (Photos by Beavers)

Teays Valley Vikings Top Westfall in 22-14 Grid Tilt

Teays Valley came from behind at the end of the first quarter to defeat cross county rival, Westfall, in a 22-14 football game played last night on the Mustang Gridiron.

Trailing 6-0 as the first period ended, the Vikings scored six points in the second quarter, eight in the third and eight in the fourth to wrap up their second win of the year in four starts.

For Westfall, it was the fourth defeat of the season.

The Mustangs first score came on a one-yard run by Tom Hamman after Westfall gridder had recovered a fumble near mid-field to set up the scoring drive.

THE VIKINGS retaliated in the second period when Gerald Greene capped a 51-yard scoring drive with a three-yard plunge.

In the third period, the Vikings crossed the Westfall goal line three times, only to see two of the touchdowns nullified by penalties.

When they did score, Teays Valley took advantage of a bad Westfall punt that skidded off the side of the kicker's foot and went out of bounds on the Westfall 35.

The scoring play in that series was a 10-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Bruce Roese to sophomore end Mike Lombardo.

Westfall then put together a 74-yard drive with Brad Thompson moving over from 15 yards out. Hamman bulled over for the conversion try to knot the score.

But in the fourth quarter, the Vikings came back with a 70-yard drive of their own to gain the win. Gregg Hall broke over his own right guard and romped 37 yards up the middle for the game winning score.

TWO-POINT conversions for the Vikings were scored by Lombardo and John Little. Both came on passes.

For Teays Valley, Roese and Hall were the leading ground

gainers. Roese attempted eight passes and completed five for 73 yards.

Westfall tossed five aeriels but did not complete a single pass.

Westfall Coach Joe Duncan credited Tom Hamman and Norman O'Conner with outstanding defensive performances.

Teays Valley is at Reynoldsburg Friday. The Mustangs host Piketon in a Scioto Valley Conference game.

Browns Set For Try at Comeback

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns, with walking wounded at key positions, will try to make a comeback against the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday after shattering loss to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Coach Blanton Collier hasn't announced his starting quarterback yet, but all indications are that Jim Ninowski will get the call. If he does, it'll be his first start in almost two years.

Frank Ryan, who suffered a bruised left foot in a 49-13 loss to St. Louis, has done some throwing during practice sessions but hasn't completely shaken off the injury.

The rest of the casualty list includes linebackers Galen Fiss and Vene Costello, slot end Clifton McNeil, tight end John Brewer and defensive back Larry Benz.

Fiss missed last Sunday's game and may be ready for limited duty, along with Costello, who was injured against the cards. Benz suffered a knee injury last week and McNeil twisted an already bad knee in practice. Brewer has been bothered by a shoulder bruise.

Sid Williams played in Fiss' spot last week and Dale Lindsey is ready to step in for Costello if needed. Either Walt Roberts or Tom Hutchinson are ready for slot end assignments and Ralph Smith has worked out this week in Brewer's spot.

Pain Shots May Help Lema in Spanish Test

MADRID, Spain (AP) — American Tony Lema survived some more pain-killing shots in his troublesome right elbow today and then went out with teammate Jack Nicklaus in a bid to pull his game together after two indifferent opening rounds in the Canada Cup golf competition.

Lema of Oakland, Calif., carded 76-76—152 at the halfway mark Friday — 13 shots behind individual pace setter Gary Player of South Africa. Nicklaus, of Columbus, Ohio, trailed player by four shots with 71-72—143.

Braves Tripped By Unioto, 22-12

Logan Elm's football Braves were dumped by host Unioto, 22-12, last night at Hernstein Field in Chillicothe in a game that was carried on that city's cable television.

It is the first time a county team has appeared on live television.

Jim Moorehead's two touchdowns were no match for Echard, Borland and company. The Unioto Shermans team includes eight sets of brothers.

Mike and Tim Borland, Jim and Tom Echard pace the Unioto offense.

TIM BORLAND scored one touchdown, Jim Echard the second.

and Tom Echard the third. Unioto has a 4-0 record for the season. The team now stands at 1-0 in SVC play.

Logan Elm has lost two, tied one and won one in four starts. The locals are 0-1 in SVC play.

The Braves actually had one of their better nights offensively. They gained 141 yards rushing and 104 through the air for a total of 245.

Rick Rawlins, the Braves' senior end, was on the receiving end of all Logan Elm aeriels.

On the ground, Steve Burger gained 65 yards, Roy Strawser 21 and Moorehead 55.

Next week Logan Elm hosts Canal Winchester.

Packers Poised To Host Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three sore ankles and a pain in the neck may slow down Green Bay, but the deep and powerful Packers still are solidly favored to roll to their third straight National Football League victory Sunday.

Green Bay is at home to the Chicago Bears, with four first-stringers hobbled — quarterback Bart Starr, fullback Jim Taylor and end Boyd Dowler with ankle injuries, and halfback Paul Hornung with a pinched neck nerve.

All are doubtful starters. However, the Packers have exceptional bench strength.

The Baltimore Colts have a home game Sunday against San Francisco's surprising 49ers. San Francisco has built a 2-0 record behind the fine passing of John Brodie and is one of the league's four unbeaten teams heading into the third week of the season. Green Bay, the Detroit Lions and the Dallas Cowboys are the others.

The Lions play at home against the Washington Redskins Sunday and the Cowboys meet the Cardinals at St. Louis in a Monday night game.

Also on the NFL's Sunday schedule — the Cleveland Browns against the Eagles at Philadelphia, the Minnesota Vikings vs. the Rams at Los Angeles, and the New York Giants against the Steelers at Pittsburgh.

In the American Football League Sunday — Oakland is at Buffalo, Houston at San Diego, New York at Denver and Boston at Kansas City.

Despite the 49ers' record and impressive individual exploits, Johnny Unitas and the Colts are favored to regain the winning track.

Detroit, with its rugged defense, is expected to prevail against the Redskins, whose attack has been blunted by injuries.

Both the Browns and Eagles will be trying to rebound from morale-shaking losses. St. Louis buried Cleveland 49-13 last Sunday and New York upset Philadelphia 16-14 on field goal in the final seconds.

The Cardinals re-established themselves as co-favorites with Cleveland in the Eastern Division in that rout of the Browns. But the Cowboys also forged into contention with their two strong victories, showing good balance by scoring 58 points to nine for the opposition.

Minnesota, a Western dark-horse, will be trying to get back in the race against the Rams. The Vikings lost their first two, while the Rams split.

The Giants-Steelers game is a match between two well-shuffled clubs, with the Giants apparently jelling faster. Pittsburgh's stock is even lower with John Henry Johnson, the tough fullback, out of the line-up.

Twins Pilot Was Looking For Another Job Year Ago

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — "You know the old story: Managers who don't win get fired."

Sam Mele was talking about the occupational tightrope he was walking a year ago today as manager of the Minnesota Twins.

The Twins, after finishing second in 1962 and third in 1963 under Mele, slumped to a tie with Cleveland for sixth place in 1964.

President Calvin Griffith said publicly he didn't blame Mele for the club's troubles, but he also would not commit himself about who his manager would be in 1965.

"Sure, I was looking around for other possible jobs," Mele said. "I've got a family to think about and I wasn't at all sure what the future held. I'm 43 years old."

"I talked to Curt Gowdy about becoming a member of the Boston Red Sox broadcasting team. That was a definite offer."

Soon after the 1964 World Series, Griffith talked to Mele in a New York hotel room. Griffith told Sam he would have to take a pay cut—using the logic that Mele demanded, and received, a big raise in pay the year before, so a cut was in order when the team slumped like it did.

Mele put up only a token fight, took the pay cut and began making plans for 1965.

"I felt we were contenders, but we had to do certain things," Mele said. "The biggest thing was to change our tactics."

"I decided we had to hit and run and not wait for the home run."

The Twins clinched the 1965 AL pennant last Sunday.

Mele has always maintained excellent relations with the press, but he gets irritated sometimes by what he considers second-guessing in print.

"They've got a job to do," he said of reporters and columnists. "Sometimes I think they should understand why I make moves before they write about them. There have been times when I think they're second-guessing me in print without ever asking me what happened."

But with the pennant locked up, Mele was benevolent.

"This is the greatest thing that has happened to me in baseball," he said.

"How can I be mad at anyone?"

The Plains 16-0 Winners

The Plains of Mt. Sterling overpowered Southeastern, 16-0, last night in a game played at South Charleston.

Southeastern managed only one yard gain in the second half. They netted 79 yards rushing in the game and hit on four out of seven passes for 25 yards. The Plains racked up 187 yards, with 120 on the ground, and 67 in the air by completing eight out of 15.

The Plains tallied in the third quarter as Harrison grabbed a Dave Jones pass for three yards. On the conversion Jones again found Harrison for two points.

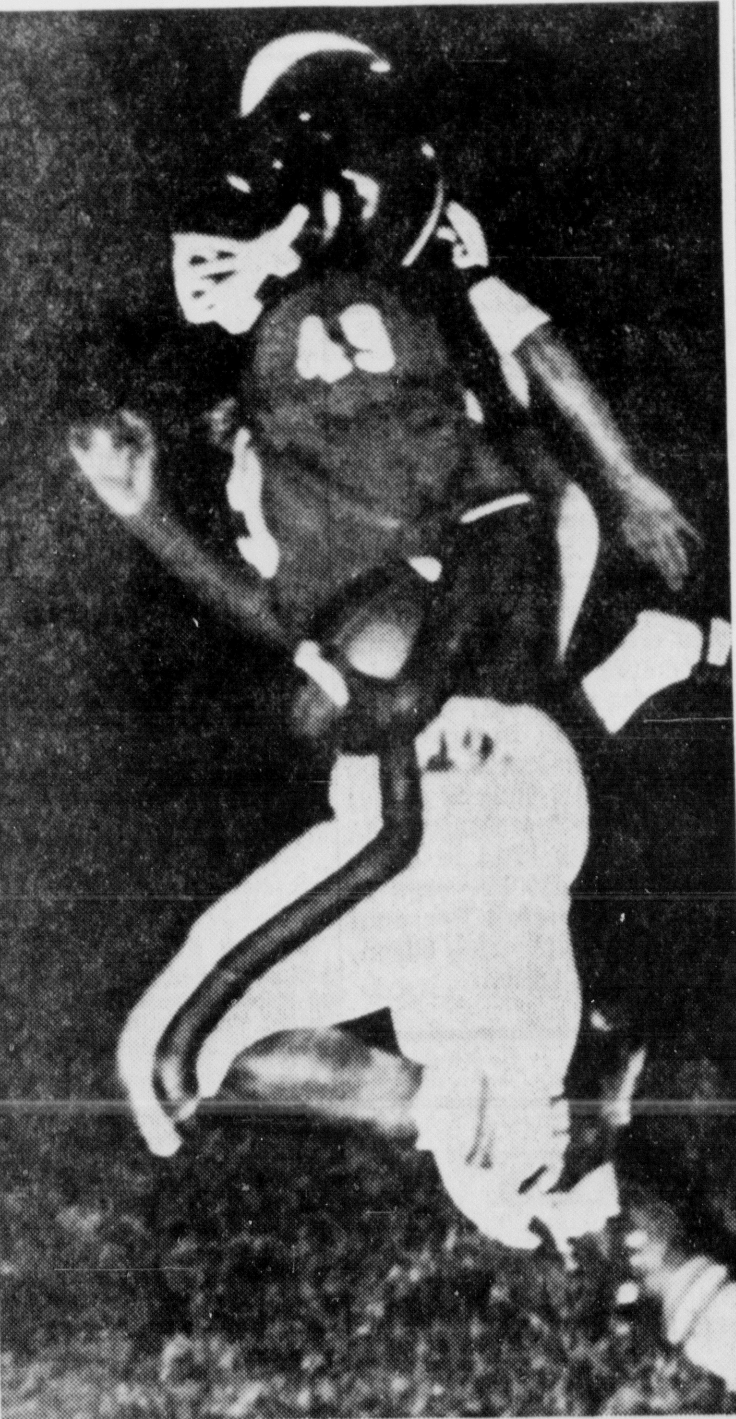

A three-yard plunge by Larry Griffith in the fourth put the Plains in front, 14-0, and Griffith came through for the two-point conversion.

The winners compiled 10 first downs and Southeastern managed seven.

When they did score, Teays Valley took advantage of a bad Westfall punt that skidded off the side of the kicker's foot and went out of bounds on the Westfall 35.

The scoring play in that series was a 10-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Bruce Roese to sophomore end Mike Lombardo.

Westfall then put together a 74-yard drive with Brad Thompson moving over from 15 yards out. Hamman bulled over for the conversion try to knot the score.

But in the fourth quarter, the Vikings came back with a 70-yard drive of their own to gain the win. Gregg Hall broke over his own right guard and romped 37 yards up the middle for the game winning score.

TWO-POINT conversions for the Vikings were scored by Lombardo and John Little. Both came on passes.

For Teays Valley, Roese and Hall were the leading ground

gainers. Roese attempted eight passes and completed five for 73 yards.

Westfall tossed five aerials but did not complete a single pass.

Westfall Coach Joe Duncan credited Tom Hamman and Norman O'Connor with outstanding defensive performances.

Teays Valley is at Reynoldsburg Friday. The Mustangs host Piketon in a Scioto Valley Conference game.

Browns Set For Try at Comeback

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns, with walking wounded at key positions, will try to make a comeback against the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday after shattering loss to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Coach Blanton Collier hasn't announced his starting quarterback yet, but all indications are that Jim Ninowski will get the call. If he does, it'll be his first start in almost two years.

Frank Ryan, who suffered a bruised left foot in a 49-13 loss to St. Louis, has done some throwing during practice sessions but hasn't completely shaken off the injury.

The rest of the casualty list includes linebackers Galen Fiss and Vene Costello, slot end Clifton McNeil, tight end John Brewer and defensive back Larry Benz.

Fiss missed last Sunday's game and may be ready for limited duty, along with Costello, who was injured against the cards. Benz suffered a knee injury last week and McNeil twisted an already bad knee in practice. Brewer has been bothered by a shoulder bruise.

Sid Williams played in Fiss' spot last week and Dale Lindsey is ready to step in for Costello if needed. Either Walt Roberts or Tom Hutchinson are ready for slot end assignments and Ralph Smith has worked out this week in Brewer's spot.

Pain Shots May Help Lema in Spanish Test

MADRID, Spain (AP) — American Tony Lema survived some more pain-killing shots in his troublesome right elbow today and then went out with teammate Jack Nicklaus in a bid to pull his game together after two indifferent opening rounds in the Canada Cup golf competition.

Lema of Oakland, Calif., carded 76-76—152 at the halfway mark Friday — 13 shots behind individual pace setter Gary Player of South Africa. Nicklaus, of Columbus, Ohio, trailed player by four shots with 71-72—143.

Braves Tripped By Unioto, 22-12

Logan Elm's football Braves were dumped by host Unioto, 22-12, last night at Herrin Field in Chillicothe in a game that was carried on that city's cable television.

It is the first time a county team has appeared on live television.

Jim Moorehead's two touchdowns were no match for Echarde, Borland and company. The Unioto Shermans team includes eight sets of brothers.

Mike and Tim Borland, Jim and Tom Echarde pace the Unioto offense.

TIM BORLAND scored one touchdown, Jim Echarde the second.

and Tom Echarde the third. Unioto has a 4-0 record for the season. The team now stands at 1-0 in SVC play.

Logan Elm has lost two, tied one and won one in four starts. The locals are 0-1 in SVC play.

The Braves actually had one of their better nights offensively. They gained 141 yards rushing and 104 through the air for a total of 245.

Rick Rawlins, the Braves' senior end, was on the receiving end of all Logan Elm aerials. On the ground, Steve Burger gained 65 yards, Roy Strawser 21 and Moorehead 55.

Next week Logan Elm hosts Canal Winchester.

Packers Poised To Host Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three sore ankles and a pain in the neck may slow down Green Bay, but the deep and powerful Packers still are solidly favored to roll to their third straight National Football League victory Sunday.

Green Bay is at home to the Chicago Bears, with four first-stringers hobbled — quarterback Bart Starr, fullback Jim Taylor and end Boyd Dowler with ankle injuries, and halfback Paul Hornung with a pinched neck nerve.

All are doubtful starters. However, the Packers have exceptional bench strength.

The Baltimore Colts have a home game Sunday against San Francisco's surprising 49ers. San Francisco has built a 2-0 record behind the fine passing of John Brodie and is one of the league's four unbeaten teams heading into the third week of the season. Green Bay, the Detroit Lions and the Dallas Cowboys are the others.

The Lions play at home against the Washington Redskins Sunday and the Cowboys meet the Cardinals at St. Louis in a Monday night game.

Also on the NFL's Sunday schedule — the Cleveland Browns against the Eagles at Philadelphia, the Minnesota Vikings vs. The Rams at Los Angeles, and the New York Giants against the Steelers at Pittsburgh.

In the American Football League Sunday — Oakland is at Buffalo, Houston at San Diego, New York at Denver and Boston at Kansas City.

Despite the 49ers' record and impressive individual exploits, Johnny Unitas and the Colts are favored to regain the winning track.

Detroit, with its rugged defense, is expected to prevail against the Redskins, whose attack has been blunted by injuries.

Both the Browns and Eagles will be trying to rebound from morale-shaking losses. St. Louis braked Cleveland 49-13 last Sunday and New York upset Philadelphia 16-14 on field goal in the final seconds.

The Cardinals re-established themselves as co-favorites with Cleveland in the Eastern Division in that rout of the Browns. But the Cowboys also forged into contention with their two strong victories, showing good balance by scoring 58 points to nine for the opposition.

Minnesota, a Western darkhorse, will be trying to get back in the race against the Rams. The Vikings lost their first two, while the Rams split.

The Giants-Steelers game is a match between two well-shuffled clubs, with the Giants apparently jelling faster. Pittsburgh's stock is even lower with John Henry Johnson, the tough fullback, out of the line-up.

Twins Pilot Was Looking For Another Job Year Ago

MINNEAPOLIS (ST. PAUL AP) — "You know the old story: Managers who don't win get fired."

Sam Mele was talking about the occupational tightrope he was walking a year ago today as manager of the Minnesota Twins.

The Twins, after finishing second in 1962 and third in 1963 under Mele, slumped to a tie with Cleveland for sixth place in 1964.

President Calvin Griffith said publicly he didn't blame Mele for the club's troubles, but he also would not commit himself about who his manager would be in 1965.

"Sure, I was looking around for other possible jobs," Mele said. "I've got a family to think about and I wasn't at all sure what the future held. I'm 43 years old."

"I talked to Curt Gowdy about becoming a member of the Boston Red Sox broadcasting team. That was a definite offer."

Soon after the 1964 World Series, Griffith talked to Mele in a New York hotel room. Griffith told Sam he would have to take a pay cut — using the logic that Mele demanded, and received, a big raise in pay the year before, so a cut was in order when the team slumped like it did.

Mele put up only a token fight, took the pay cut and began making plans for 1965.

"I felt we were contenders, but we had to do certain things," Mele said. "The biggest thing was to change our tactics."

"I decided we had to hit and run and not wait for the home run."

The Twins clinched the 1965 AL pennant last Sunday.

Mele has always maintained excellent relations with the press, but he gets irritated sometimes by what he considers second-guessing in print.

"They've got a job to do," he said of reporters and columnists. "Sometimes I think they should understand why I make moves before they write about them. There have been times when I think they're second-guessing me in print without ever asking me what happened."

But with the pennant locked up, Mele was benevolent.

"This is the greatest thing that has happened to me in baseball," he said.

"How can I be mad at anyone?"

The Plains 16-0 Winners

The Plains of Mt. Sterling overpowered Southeastern, 16-0, last night in a game played at South Charleston.

Southeastern managed only one yard gain in the second half. They netted 79 yards rushing in the game and hit on four out of seven passes for 25 yards. The Plains racked up 187 yards, with 120 on the ground, and 67 in the air by completing eight out of 15.

The Plains tallied in the third quarter as Harrison grabbed a Dave Jones pass for three yards. On the conversion Jones again found Harrison for two points.

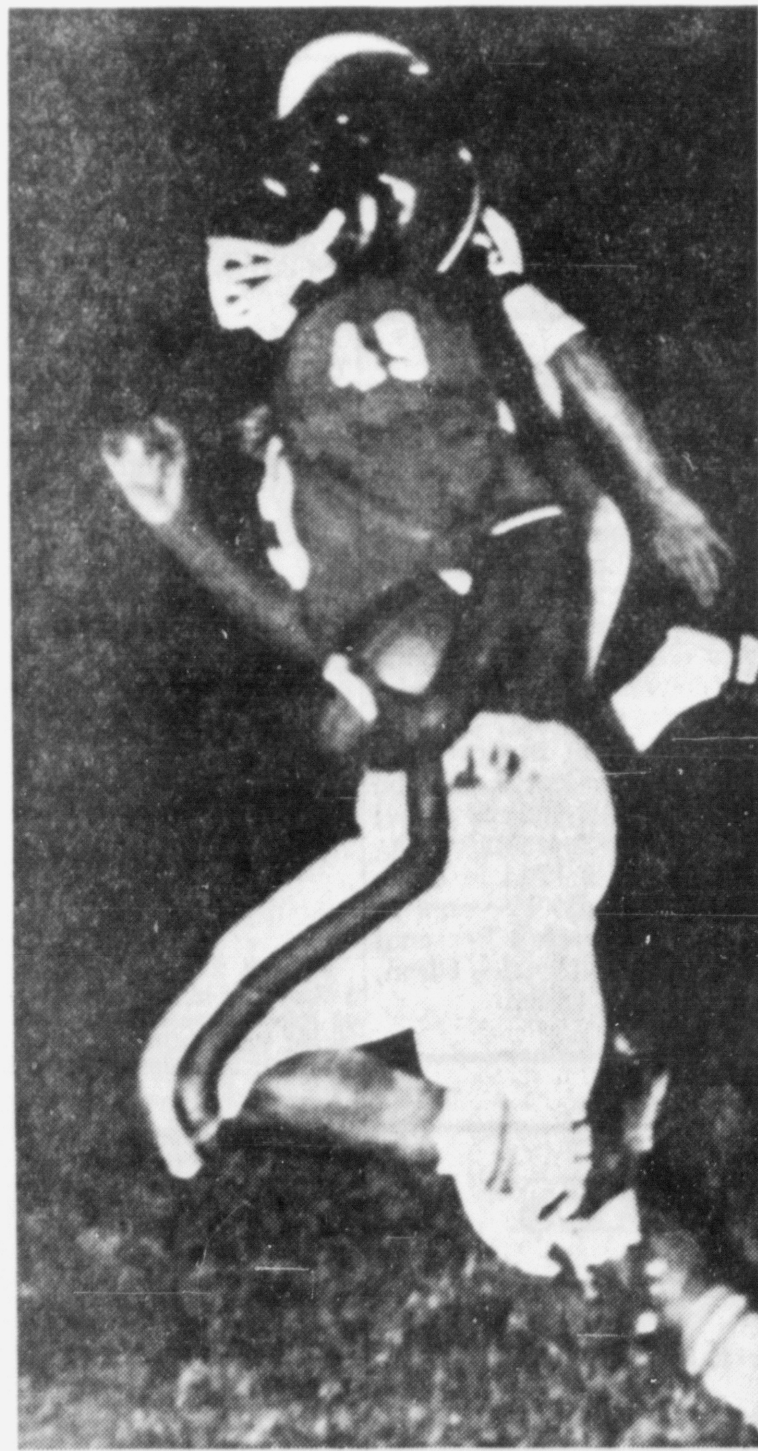

A three-yard plunge by Larry Griffith in the fourth put the Plains in front, 14-0, and Griffith came through for the two-point conversion.

The winners compiled 10 first downs and Southeastern managed seven.

Pro Basketball League Play To Start Oct. 15

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association opens its 20th season Friday night, Oct. 15, with two games — St. Louis at Cincinnati and Los Angeles at San Francisco.

The five other NBA teams will begin action the following night, when the schedule will be Cincinnati against the defending champion Celtics at Boston, Detroit at New York, Philadelphia at Baltimore and Los Angeles at St. Louis.

IN THE CLEAR — Howard Dade (49) breaks out in the open and picks up long yardage. He gained 117 yards last night to bring his yearly total to 589.

Dodgers Could Clinch 1965 Pennant Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It would be fitting if Sandy Koufax clinched the National League pennant for the Los Angeles Dodgers today. But he may not get the opportunity.

Koufax, whose 25 victories have led Los Angeles' drive for the pennant, is in a position to nail it down for the Dodgers, who clinched at least a tie for their third flag in seven years despite a 2-0 loss to Milwaukee Friday night.

The Dodger game will start one hour and 15 minutes after the second-place San Francisco Giants take the field against the Cincinnati club that mauled them 17-2 Friday night.

The time factor is such that if the Giants lose before Los Angeles finishes its game, the Dodgers would have the pennant clinched before Koufax had an opportunity to wrap it up.

As the race now stands, with the Dodgers leading by two games and only two remaining, either a San Francisco loss or a Los Angeles victory ends the struggle. The best the Giants can hope for is a tie by winning their games while the Dodgers lose twice, thus forcing a play-off.

Koufax will start against the Braves' 23-game winner, Tony Cloninger. The Giants will send Ron Herbel, 11-9, against Jim O'Toole, 3-9.

In other games Friday night, Pittsburgh edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and Houston defeated St. Louis 4-2.

The Chicago White Sox moved into a tie with Baltimore for second place in the American League by beating Kansas City 6-1 while the Orioles split with Cleveland. Baltimore won the opener 2-0 but the Indians took the nightcap 3-2.

The Dodgers, who had won 13 games in a row, could have clinched it Friday night by winning one more, but the Braves' Denny Lemaster stood in their way. Lemaster, winning only his seventh game against 13 defeats, pitched out of his only jam in the first inning and went on to set the Dodgers down on five hits.

Claude Osteen, now 15-15, matched Lemaster until the Braves broke through for an unearned sixth inning run.

Felipe Alou led off with a walk and raced to third as catcher John Roseboro picked up Mack Jones' bunt and fired the ball past third base. Osteen walked Hank Aaron intentionally, then struck out Joe Torre and got Gene Oliver to rap a sharp grounder to third baseman Jim Gilliam.

Gilliam, however, threw high to Jim Lefebvre in a try for a force play at second base, and Alou scored when Lefebvre's toss to first base was too late for an out there.

Alou drove in the Braves' other run with an infield single in the seventh inning.

It was no contest at San Francisco after the first five batters had swung away at Bob Bolin. Pete Rose singled, and one out later, Vada Pinson singled. Frank Robinson and Gordy Coleman then hit consecutive homers for a 4-0 lead and Sammy Ellis had more than enough working room as he posted his 22nd victory by scattering eight hits.

Before the game was over, Rose and Deron Johnson also had homered for the Reds while San Francisco Manager Herman Franks called on eight pitchers in an attempt to stem Cincinnati's 21-hit assault.

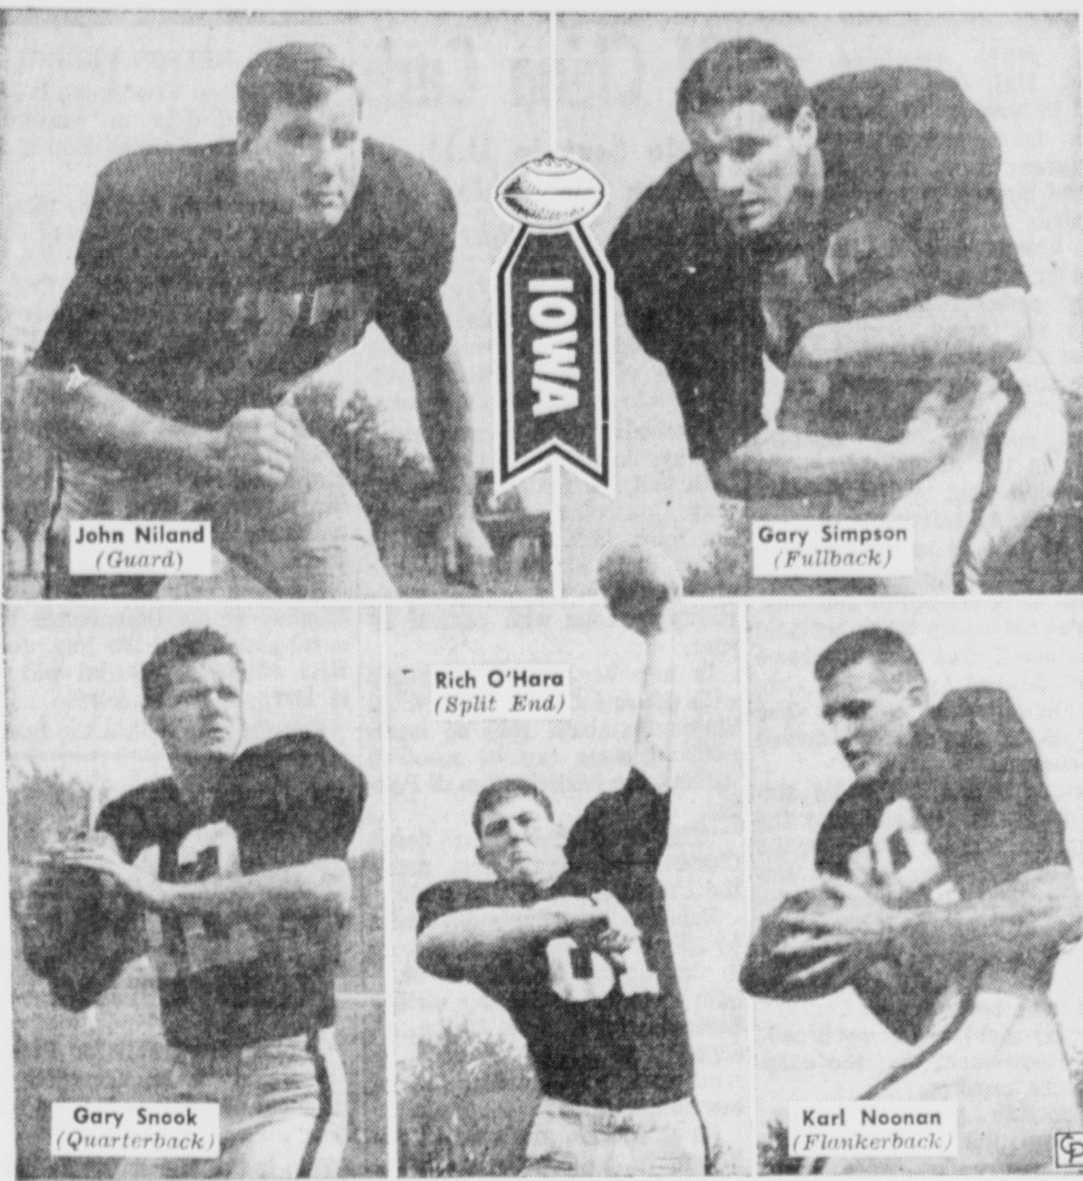

Tom Haller homered for the Giants and Len Jaberlson stroked three of their eight hits off Ellis.

The Pirates won it in the ninth against the Cubs on Jim Pagliaroni's two-run single with the bases loaded.

Tribunal Eyes Apportioning Of Ohio's State Senate

CINCINNATI (AP)—A special panel of three judges is considering whether—and how—Ohio's system of electing state senators should be changed.

The judges heard arguments Friday from attorneys representing the state Senate who defended the present system and from counsel for Clarence Blosser of Logan who says the system is unconstitutional. The case was taken under advisement.

The General Assembly failed to reapportion itself during the last session and the court set Oct. 15 as the deadline for filing plans to bring the districts into line with the U. S. Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" decision. Ohio's Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, who attended the court session, said the State Apportionment Board is working on a plan but it cannot be submitted until the court rules on Blosser's suit.

Harry P. Jeffrey of Dayton, attorney for Blosser, told the judges that 15 of the present 32 senators represent either too many people or too few.

"Ideally, each senator should represent 303,325 persons," said Jeffrey, saying this figure was derived from a mathematical formula. He added that there is one senator with 439,347 constituents while another senator represents only 228,466 people.

Kenneth Weinberg of Cleveland, one of the attorneys for the Senate, countered that "the only way we could have mathematical equality would be for the election of senators at large . . . and that would be the worst kind of election because all of the senators would come from the urban areas."

Weinberg told the court that the Senate had "wrestled with the problem and came to the conclusion that the best system we can get is the one we now have."

Under the present system, the state is divided into districts. Some of the districts consist of a single county while other districts include several counties.

Weinberg and Attorney Hugh A. Sherer of Columbus were retained by the Senate political leaders, Republican Theodore M. Gray of Piqua and Democrat Frank W. King of Toledo.

The court consisted of Paul C. Weick of Akron, chief judge of the 6th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and District Judges Carl A. Weinman of Dayton and John W. Peck of Cincinnati.

Collegians Prefer Chaucer To Top Television Shows

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The lively works of a poet who has been dead for nearly 600 years are giving today's top television shows a battle for ratings at Ohio State University.

The fight for prime time began when the university, armed with a space-age computer and magnetic tape, put the works of English poet Geoffrey Chaucer and other notable writers in its campus listening center which is designed to bring recorded instruction to students.

"We found that our students would prefer to brush up on their languages than watch television," says Dean of Men John T. Bonner.

The center is activated by a computer when a student dials it from one of 269 telephone stations on campus. The computer interprets the dialed number, plays the recorded selection desired, rewinds and cues itself for the next call.

Some selections include Chaucer's poetry and assigned oral exercises in Chinese. Computer lessons are used mostly for language courses so students can get practice in a foreign tongue. The system also is used in music appreciation courses.

What was the television room in the student union is now a listening post. "The TV set when I last saw it was shoved over into a far corner of the room," Bonner said.

Noting the complexity of the listening system, one OSU official said "A hi-fi addict would have to blush over it."

Chaucer, who is most remembered for his "Canterbury Tales," penned selections which are a bit rowdy. His works transmitted to students are more reserved and are selected by university officials.

Since recordings are not limited to particular assignments, they may be a boon to music lovers. They are available to anyone on campus who can dial a telephone at listening post. Just dial the right digits and you can tune in the music.

Judge Christensen's opinion said, "the right to counsel (meaning a lawyer) of one charged with a crime before a military tribunal is as fundamental to a fair trial as before a civilian court."

The judge said Stapley's military counsel was poorly equipped to aid him. Stapley was represented by a captain who is a veterinarian in the army and by a second lieutenant. The judge called the Army's prosecution officers equally unqualified.

Stapley said he had asked for a civilian or military lawyer, but was told by the Army no military lawyer was available. He said he couldn't afford a civilian lawyer. The Army confirmed Stapley's statement.

Cowley said he was defending Stapley because of "professional interest."

"This is a precedent — there's no question about it," Cowley said. "There is no previous case like it."

Judge Christensen's ruling may cause the Army to appeal. The Ft. Douglas legal officer, Capt. John Lorbar, said such an appeal was under study.

Restored Vets Aid Program Launched Here

The Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce Education Committee has launched an assistance program designed to help mentally restored veterans find gainful employment.

The Chamber panel, chaired by Alden D. Bray, is working in conjunction with members of the Circleville Committee for the Employment of Restored Veterans (CERV), the Exit Unit at Chillicothe Veterans Hospital and the Ohio Elks Assn.

Four veterans from the Exit Unit approaching the discharge stage underwent practice interviews this week at the BPO Elks Home. Local persons conducting the session were Hiram Hatcher and Robert Rustin of Du Pont and Phillip Hines of General Electric.

The practice interviews were termed a successful venture by the Chamber committee and the two hospital officials who accompanied the veterans here.

THE NEXT interview session has been scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Oct. 26 at the Du Pont plant employment offices.

Circleville's CERV unit is chaired by Dr. David Goldschmidt. Member of his group are Miss Pauline Reese, James Shea and Mrs. E. R. Bennett.

A primary function of the panel is to help locate jobs for the restored veterans and assist them in adjusting to community life. The practice interview program is considered an important factor in making the effort a success.

Development Program on P & Z Agenda

City officials will have another opportunity to review prospects for a comprehensive development plan in Circleville when the Planning and Zoning Commission meets 8 p. m. Monday in Council Chambers at City Hall.

Robert Burgin, representing a community planning firm, is scheduled to present essential information concerning a development program as it would apply to Circleville. Members of City Council have been invited to participate.

The Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce also has expressed keen interest in a development plan for the community. Planning and Zoning officials said today that interested Chamber members are welcome to take part in Monday's meeting.

Burgin's firm outlined a development program last year for Circleville. However, the proposal was tabled.

The prisoners will stand ready to advance the men up to $100 for expenses until their first paycheck is received. They will also outfit them with their first suits of clothing until they can afford to buy their own.

The prisoners will pay all their own expenses, and their excess earnings other than those used for family support will be held for them until they are released from prison.

Alexander said he hopes the first batch of prisoners will begin the experiment in the next few weeks. Eventually, he said, not more than 5 per cent — or 1,000 to 1,500 federal prisoners — will take part in the program.

The law specifically provides that paid employment of federal prisoners may not result in the displacement of employed workers. Nor may it be used where there is a labor surplus in the area.

But neither may the prisoners be exploited. They must be paid the going rates for whatever work they do.

No Seat in U.N. Seen for Peking

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States remained confident today it can keep Communist China out of the United Nations another year despite efforts by Peking supporters to dramatize the issue.

Cambodia used a new antic Friday, Ambassador Huor Sambath told the General Assembly that Cambodia would boycott the main U.N. committees because Red China's absence had eroded the world organization's ability to cope with critical issues.

In a policy speech peppered with denunciations of the United States, Sambath said no international issue can be resolved without the participation of Peking.

"The United Nations needs China more than China needs the United Nations," he said.

Echoing Thursday's argument by Albania — Red China's voice in the United Nations — Sambath denounced U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam and urged the United Nations to take up what he called American intervention.

He said Cambodia would keep its seat in the General Assembly but would not take part in the work of assembly organs.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, answering attacks on Washington's Viet Nam policy, told the General Assembly Friday the key to peace in Southeast Asia lies hidden in North Viet Nam. For this reason the United States must continue defending South Viet Nam from the threat of Red engulfment, he said.

Goldberg recalled that the United States had repeatedly expressed willingness to enter "negotiations with any government at any place and any time without conditions on a formula for bringing an honorable end to the Viet Nam war."

The only responses, he said, were "contemptuous rejection" from Peking and unacceptable conditions from Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital.

U.S. sources are convinced that recent warlike statements emanating from Peking, and its open moves to block U.N. efforts to restore peace between India and Pakistan, will kill any chance Red China might have of getting into the organization this year.

Tribunal Eyes Apportioning Of Ohio's State Senate

CINCINNATI (AP)—A special panel of three judges is considering whether—and how—Ohio's system of electing state senators should be changed.

The newly appointed army chief, Maj. Gen. Suharto, was said to have sent troops to deal with the commander of the Semarang area who had declared himself in support of the rebels.

A broadcast said the commander, Col. Suberman, had been dishonorably discharged from the army. Semarang is about 150 miles east of Jakarta.

Broadcasts said Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, Sukarno's defense minister, had restored order in the capital after the attempted coup by Untung.

Untung, a relatively obscure officer, said he seized power to save Sukarno from a plot concocted by a council of generals. He did not name them but said the council was a "subversive body" backed by the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency. The U. S. State Department denied the charge.

Untung seized the radio station early Friday and told the nation he was in power at the head of a 45-member "revolutionary council." The council included at least 10 Communist sympathizers but the political coloration of Untung's movement was not known.

Friday night, the army broadcast a statement that the coup had been crushed.

14B Battle Due Monday In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate battle over 14B starts Monday. It could go on for days or weeks.

Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act permits states to ban labor contracts which require workers to join a union to hold their jobs. A House-passed bill would repeal that section, thus nullifying laws of 19 states which now forbid the union shop.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana cleared the way Friday for the start of lengthy debate on the issue. He made a motion that the Senate take up the bill on Monday, saying he acted "so that everyone will be prepared."

The motion to take up the bill, as well as the bill itself, can be debated at length. Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois has served notice that both will be, if necessary. Teams of speakers who oppose repeal have been organized for the extended discussion, which Dirksen declines to call a filibuster.

Draft Call For Pickaway Quadrupled

October draft call for Pickaway County is 28, according to the local Selective Service office.

This is the highest quota here since the Korean War. The call amounts to four times as many men ordered for the draft last month. The September call was seven.

In addition to the 28 slated for induction on Tuesday, another 31 men are to be sent this month to Fort Hayes Industrial center, Columbus, for pre-induction examinations.

The local quota has been increasing for the past few months. In August, only 17 men were sent up for pre-induction exams. The figure jumped to 32 for September.

Collegians Prefer Chaucer To Top Television Shows

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The lively works of a poet who has been dead for nearly 600 years are giving today's top television shows a battle for ratings at Ohio State University.

The fight for prime time began when the university, armed with a space-age computer and magnetic tape, put the works of English poet Geoffrey Chaucer and other notable writers in its campus listening center which is designed to bring recorded instruction to students.

"We found that our students would prefer to brush up on their languages than watch television," says Dean of Men John T. Bonner.

The center is activated by a computer when a student dials it from one of 269 telephone stations on campus. The computer interprets the dialed number, plays the recorded selection desired, rewinds and cues itself for the next call.

Some selections include Chaucer's poetry and assigned oral exercises in Chinese. Computer lessons are used mostly for language courses so students can get practice in a foreign tongue. The system also is used in music appreciation courses.

What was the television room in the student union is now a listening post. "The TV set when I last saw it was shoved over into a far corner of the room," Bonner said. Noting the complexity of the listening system, one OSU official said "A hi-fi addict would have to blush over it."

Chaucer, who is most remembered for his "Canterbury Tales," penned selections which are a bit rowdy. His works transmitted to students are more reserved and are selected by university officials.

Since recordings are not limited to particular assignments, they may be a boon to music lovers. They are available to anyone on campus who can dial a telephone at listening post.

Just dial the right digits and you can tune in the music.

Decision . . .

Judge Christensen's opinion said, "the right to counsel (meaning a lawyer) of one charged with a crime before a military tribunal is as fundamental to a fair trial as before a civilian court."

The judge said Stapley's military counsel was poorly equipped to aid him. Stapley was represented by a captain who is a veterinarian in the army and by a second lieutenant. The judge called the Army's prosecution officers equally unqualified.

Stapley said he had asked for a civilian or military lawyer, but was told by the Army no military lawyer was available. He said he couldn't afford a civilian lawyer. The Army confirmed Stapley's statement.

Cowley said he was defending Stapley because of "professional interest."

"This is a precedent — there's no question about it," Cowley said. "There is no previous case like it."

Judge Christensen's ruling may cause the Army to appeal. The Ft. Douglas legal officer, Capt. John Lorbar, said such an appeal was under study.
